PRESIDENT LOW'S ADDRESS.

Then President Low addressed the graduates in part

Then President Low addressed the graduates in part as follows:

Tonight for the first time Columbia gives her degree to a graduating class from Barnard College, That consumuation which our old president wheld to see with a longing akin to the longing of Moses to see the promised land, has been accomplished in his name. It is now possible for young wemen not only to obtain the Columbia degree, but also—and this is far nore significant—to obtain the same long training and careful preparation which that degree implies when it is bestowed upon young men. No one can recall the visions that have opened up to him as an incident of the widening of the mind resulting from his college education without feeling that he who has opened up a young women the privileges of the higher education has really done for wemankind something of the same service which Columbus did for the Middle Ages.

He has opened up to them almost literally a new world in which they may exercise as they demonstrate their power to do so the right of eminent domain. Nor need the purallel stop there. The significance of the new world discovered by Columbus has not been confined to those who have become its citizens. In a thousand ways it has enlarged the life of the Old World, broadening its horizon, and making it capable of new and greater things. Even so, I fains, the higher education of women will not exhaust its meaning in its effect upon the education of women thenselves. New lights will be thrown upon many of the problems of life and new strength will come in many directions from the enlargement of the vision which recent times only have made possible for the women of the race.

I can imagine no more inspiring opportunity than to enter upon life in these stirring days of ours in this free land. On every side of your three will be difficulties to be overcome, low ideals to be raised, mishfevous conceptions to be combated; but what are these to the brave heart except they spur to endeavor and the call to consecrated service: We have allowed there is Lincoln was written side it side with that of Washington. James Bruce, the author of the "American Commonwealth," thought if the United states of America had done nothing else in giving to the world the name and character of Lincoln they had justified their right to be. To such an opportunity, graduates of Columbia, I bid you welcome and in your efforts to be worthy of it I give you to-night Alma Mater's godspeed.

WORK OF THE PRINTERS! CONVENTION Chleago, June 14. The International Typograph ical Union Convention this morning resumed the con sideration of the Law Committee's report. The committee made an adverse report on the recommend. tion by Delegate Tudhope, of Grand Forks, that apprentices should be indentured and also that the union should pass a law forbidding a member acting as foreman of a composing room and of a job office at the same time. After a spirited debate the con vention upheli the adverse report of the committee by a decisive majority. The proposal to change the representation scheme by sending delegates from the respective states and Provinces instead of from the tricts was defeated by a vote of 13s to 39, question of creating an international fund of not less than $5 per member, out of which are to be paid the expenses and benefits of the union, was referred to the suber trate unions. The idea of paying death benefits to the families of members in good standing was likewise submitted to the individual unions, vote of 100 to 77 the convention submitted the quer Con of paying a $5 sick benefit for thirteen week subordinate matons. About 200 delegates visited "The Chicago Herald" office this afternoon and spent several hours inspecting the equipment. An elaborate luncheon was served.

THE SAVAGE ACT OF A BRUTAL OFFICER.

PATROLMAN JOHN HODGE BEATS A WAITER, BREAKING HIS ARM IN TWO PLACES AND KNOCKING HIM SENSELESS.

When Superintendent Byrnes abolished the fight stick it was hoped that he had put an end to the tyra my of brutal policemen, who somehow get into the service. But the "tough" officer will use his billy," or even his fists at the slightest provocation. If the story told by Gustav Baran to Inspector Williams yesterday be only partly true Patrolman John Hodge is entitled to that high rank among will be put in dry-dock to-day.

In moored outside the dry-dock and men were briskly at work on lier, putting the finishing touches on her at night, was in love with a young girl whose parents. Baran, a waiter, who works in a downtown restauobjected to him or account of his calling. Under these circumstances he was compelled to forego the pleasure of seeing her at her house. On Sunday afternoon he was waiting at Rivington and Ludlow sts. for the young woman, where, he says, Hodge, who and been busily dispersing a crowd of boys, turned to him and said: "What are you dring here! Move cn!" "But, policeman," timidly replied Baran, "Pm waiting for a friend, ard—." He got no further than that, for a blow in the face slienced him.

"Now, look here, young feller," said Hodge, leisurely surveying the effect of the blow, "when I says move on, I mean move on. See? Now, just sneak."

Bara: aimed a blow at the policeman, turned and run. But Hodge was after him like a flash.

had gone scoreely twenty yards when Baran stopped and fell on his knees. Hodge's hand reached for his " billy." "For God's sake don't kill me," screamed Baran.

"Do what you will-drag me to the station or serd me to prison—but spare my life."

The "billy," grasped tightly in the policeman's heel on the yacht will begin, for she has neither mast nor fin-keel at present, but is just as she came from the builders' hands.

The yacht in coming through the Delaware and Raritan Canal had just four inches to spare in the locks. The steel pieces which will form the fin-keel of the Irligrim are at the Erie Basin and the lead for the keel will arrive this week. It will take about ten days to put on the fin-keel.

The Pilgrim is built of steel, and is 120 feet over all, 85 feet on the water-live, 23 feet beam, and with her fin will draw 22 feet of water. Without her fin Raran bit him severely on the hand, and that he was obliged to use his club in order to save his fingers.

THE COURTS.

HE TOOK THE EARY ON THE TUGBOAT. Captain Oswald G. Day has a tugboat and a has a wife, but will not have one long if his wishes are granted, and he declares that the baby has never had reason to know that it had a mother. The mother insisted on having the child fed on a bottle. Captain Day declares, because under any other arrangement she would not be able to go out nights. Not only did she insist on paying attention to her social duties in the evening, but the captain says he had to take the haby on the tugboat with him in the daytime to allow the mother to go out then also.

He sued her for a diverce. The case came up before Judge McAdam in the superior Court yesterday, in a contest for the custody of the child. Judge McAdam wanted to think about the case, so he took the papers and reserved his decision.

The commission yesterday continued the inquiry into the management of the Appraiser's stores, with Assistant Appraiser J. Henry Isaac's in the witness chair. Mr. Isaacs evidently had determined that he would not permit the members of the commission to browbeat him, as its members had other witnesses, and he answered only those questions which were worthy of being answered. Once or twice during the day Mr. Isaacs had occasion to let certain members of the commission know that he was not to be imposed

Nothing important was brought out at the hearing. Nothing important was brought out at the hearing. The commission will next take up the alleged frands in the importation of second-hand burlap bars, in which, it is said, the Government, through fraud and connivance, loses annually $250,000 in duties.
